

National Women's Council: Digital Communications Officer (<https://www.activelink.ie/node/109048>)

NWC is currently recruiting for a Digital Communications Officer

This is an important time for the National Women's Council (NWC). As the leading representative organisation for women and women's organisations with over 190 member groups across the island of Ireland, we are at the forefront of campaigning for women's rights and equality.

An exciting opportunity has come up to join our team as Digital Communications Officer. If you are passionate about feminism and women's equality, are an excellent communicator and have experience in digital communications, we want you!

We are looking for you to join the team based in Dublin. We work a hybrid model, with two days a week in the office. This post is for a full time (35 hours/week) position for an initial fixed term contract of 12 months.

NWC is an equal opportunities employer and welcomes applications from all interested parties including people from diverse backgrounds and under-represented groups including ethnic minority groups and people with disabilities. NWC offers a number of flexible working arrangements.

The Digital Communications Officer is responsible for creating highly engaging digital communications campaigns and digital content to support the strategic goals of the organisation. The Officer is also responsible for managing NWC online donations, including the Feminist Changemaker programme.

The Officer manages NWC's supporter email programme and seeks to grow NWC's mailing list. The Officer is responsible for developing and updating NWC's website and supports the daily management and further development of NWC's social media platforms.

The Officer also supports NWC events and media function and produces media materials, ie. press releases.
