The in-person "Leadership Essentials Course in Global Health," hosted by the Irish Global Health Network in Trinity College Dublin over five days in August, is dedicated to equipping participants with practical skills for leading global health programmes, particularly in resource-limited settings.

This intensive programme covers tailored key topics relevant to global health development, research, and humanitarian response, providing participants with technical expertise in project planning and management.

Join us for an educational experience where you'll gain hands-on training, make meaningful connections with mentors and experts, and become a change-maker in global health.
