

Irish Hospice Foundation: Time to Talk - Tomorrow Starts Today Campaign (<https://www.activelink.ie/node/110228>)

In Ireland, we like to say that “We do death well”. It’s true that we know how to host a good funeral, but when it comes to talking about end-of-life wishes, death and grief, most of us might feel uncomfortable or don’t know where to start. These conversations may feel daunting, but they don’t have to be.

Time to Talk: Tomorrow Starts Today is a campaign by Irish Hospice Foundation which aims to normalise conversations about dying and grieving. Death and grief affect us all. It’s important that we explore and think about our end-of-life wishes, and that we discuss them with our loved ones. It’s also important that those of us who are grieving are acknowledged and given the space and opportunity to talk about our losses.
