PSI Chartered Psychologist (clinical or counselling)

Spectrum.Life is a whole-of-health digital partner that guides organisations and their people to thrive, delivering clinically backed digital health, mental health and wellbeing solutions.

Our HealthTech delivers digital transformation for Insurers, Educators and Employers through Co-creation or seamlessly integrated out-of-the-box solutions, that decrease digital fragmentation and engage, empower, and transform their people's lives.

Established in 2018 by Stuart McGoldrick and Stephen Costello, Spectrum.Life provides services internationally to over 7.2m insurance members, 3,000 corporate clients, 60 universities and 650,000 university students. Spectrum.Life currently employs over 260 people, including over 125 clinicians.

Our vision is to change and save as many lives as possible.

Spectrum.Life's Neurodiversity Service consists of a multidisciplinary team of qualified, accredited, knowledgeable, and experienced professionals who are passionate about supporting people to understand themselves and live happy, healthy, authentic, and meaningful lives.

Our neurodiversity team continually strives to embody and develop neuro-affirming practice. We oppose the assumption that there is one 'standard' neurotype that exists and recognise that the population is neurodiverse. Neurotype (or brain type) variation is not only natural and inevitable but valuable (i.e. not a deficit). We recognise that the process of being neurodiversity affirming is an ongoing journey with no fixed end point, and one which requires constant action, learning, engagement, and commitment. We continually evaluate our practice through critical reflection and active seeking of feedback, and challenge neuro-normative thinking at every opportunity.

ROLE BRIEF

Are you passionate about neurodiversity, mental health, and wellbeing? Do you want to make a real difference to people's lives?

We are seeking a PSI Chartered Psychologist (clinical or counselling) to join our team to provide timely, high-quality assessments and psychological interventions for individuals using digital platforms. This exciting opportunity will be within our neurodiversity affirming service, where you will primarily be undertaking neurodivergence identity explorations (assessments) with individuals that are older than 7 years. The role requires working collaboratively with clients, alongside a multidisciplinary team, to undertake comprehensive clinical interviews, diagnostic identity explorations, and provide post-identification collaboration with clients.

You will additionally be responsible for writing up assessment reports in a timely and professional manner, as well as providing appropriate recommendations and interventions. Additionally, you may be involved in individual therapy, group work, and consultations with families and other professionals.

You will have a good knowledge of working psychologically with individuals and those important to them, as well as expertise in the assessment and support of individuals presenting with a range of psychological and behavioural difficulties.

Additionally, a comprehensive knowledge of digital platforms and the capability to utilise them effectively, ethically, and safely will be essential.

We are looking for people who:

- Have a Doctoral qualification in Psychology (Clinical, Counselling)
- Have current registration with the Psychological Society of Ireland (PSI) and have met all supervised practice requirements

- Have substantial experience undertaking autism/ADHD formal identifications (assessments)
- Have excellent communication and report writing skills
- Have experience working collaboratively as part of a multidisciplinary team
- Would like to work in a resilience-focused and inclusive way
- Are comfortable and confident working remotely online
- Are registered with the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO)
- Have professional indemnity insurance
