- Closing date for applying: January 6th 2025

About the Neurological Alliance of Ireland

The Neurological Alliance of Ireland (NAI) brings together 30 non-profit organisations to advocate for the rights of 860,000 people in Ireland living with a neurological condition. Neurological conditions affect the brain and spinal cord. They are the leading cause of disability throughout the world and include many common conditions such as stroke, dementia, migraine, epilepsy and acquired brain injury as well as rare and genetic conditions. Founded in 2003, the NAI advocates for the development of quality services for people with neurological conditions. Our campaigns are rooted in the experience of our members and the people and families with whom they work. We provide a united and expert voice on neurological care through advocacy, policy development, and awareness raising. More information can be found at www.nai.ie (<http://www.nai.ie>)

The Role

The ideal candidate should have a strong interest in communications as well as, preferably either paid or voluntary experience within the charity sector. They should be familiar with working across the social media platforms, X, Facebook and Instagram, and preferably have experience in using design and editing tools for digital media (such as Canva ), as developing visual communications will be part of the role. Please note that online training in such areas will also be provided. They will need to help develop and execute a social media plan and content, with the aim of growing NAI's messaging /brand and reach across all three social media platforms.

The Communications Intern will work directly with the Communications Officer in the Neurological Alliance of Ireland to design and deliver social media content in the lead up to, and including National Brain Awareness Week in March 2025. They will need to work well as part of a small team, have good organisational skills and be able to schedule work throughout each week.
